May 7 & 21, 2015
9:00—10:30 a.m. CST
About this series:
Did you train in ICD-10 coding back in 2013 or 2014, then “let it go” when Congress delayed implementation last year? Well, it’s time to dust off your ICD-10 Coding Manual and start practicing! The ICD-10 compliance date is on track for October 1, 2015 – less than 6 months away. CMS estimates coding errors on claims will increase from 3% to 10%, and coders will be 40-60% s-l-o-w-e-r when coding in ICD-10 compared to ICD-9.

No need to panic! MAHC is here to help you get back on track with ICD-10 preparation. This 2-part teleconference series will refresh your knowledge of ICD-10 Coding Conventions and Official Guidance using scenarios that focus on home health coding applications.

Session One: Thursday, May 7, 2015 • 9:00-10:30 a.m. CST
This session will focus on the overview of general guidelines, and chapter specific guidelines for Infections, Endocrine, Mental/Behavioral, Neuro, Cardiovascular and Respiratory conditions.

Session Two: Thursday, May 21, 2015 • 9:00-10:30 a.m. CST
This session will focus on chapter specific guidelines for Skin diagnoses, GI, GU, Musculoskeletal, Congenital conditions, injuries and poisonings, symptoms, and Z-codes.

This refresher course is designed for those who have had initial training in ICD-10, but need a refresher. Teresa will review the guidelines and go through some examples of typical home health patients, applying the guidelines and discussing potential errors to watch out for. This series in NOT a basic introduction to ICD-10 coding or for those who need a comprehensive training course. Contact MAHC for more information on in-depth ICD-10 training options coming in the fall.
